DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-30 in Paper No. 13 is acknowledged.
2. Claims 31-50 have been withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in Paper No. 13.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-15, 17, 19-30, 51-55 and 58-67 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ros (3,922,386) in view of Hyllberg (6,069,346).

Ros discloses a resistive heater and a resistive heater manufacturing process (Figures 1-3) comprising applying a resistive layer comprising a metallic component and an oxide thereof to a substrate (Col. 3, lines 23-53). Ros does not disclose a resistivity for the resistive layer. Hyllberg discloses a ceramic heating layer 14 of titanium oxide and conductive layer 17 with resistivity range from 1000 ohm-cm to 0.000001 ohm-cm (Col.4, lines 44-45). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form thin-film electric heater layers of titanium oxide and the layer within claimed resistivity range to counteract the capacitive effects of the insulating layers 12 and 13 as taught by Hyllberg (Abstract, lines 11-13).

5. Claims 16, 18 and 56-57 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ros in view of Hyllberg (5,616,263).

Ros disclose substantially the claimed features including a resistive heater and the manufacturing process comprising applying a resistive layer comprising a metallic component an oxide thereof to a substrate.

Ros does not call for the substrate to be a roller, mold, or platen and a superficial metallic layer with respect to the resistive layer.

Hyllberg discloses applying a thin-film resistive layer 14 of titanium oxide to a roller so that the electric heater is disposed over the entire roller surface uniformly thus resulting in more uniform heating of the workpiece contacting the roller. A metallic layer 15 is superficial to the heater layer 14.

In view of Hyllberg, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to apply the electric layer of Ros to a roller substrate so that the electric heater is disposed over the entire roller surface uniformly to counteract the capacitive effects of the insulating layers 12 and 13.

6. Applicant's arguments filed on 12/1/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Hyllberg teaches a ceramic heater roller 10 having a conductive layer 17 that counteracts the capacitive effects of the insulating layers

12 and 13. Resistivity of conductive layer 17 is good for the invention of Hyllberg , so it is also good for invention of the applicant.

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
